

4th Biennial Conference of the International Society for Bipolar Disorders

Pantanal

Pantanal is one of the most impressive wetlands in the world and rich ecosystems where the planet's largest wild animal concentrations can be found. The rain reigns on these special lands and waters cover all this area part of the year. Afterwards they go down and animals return to their habitats. Alligators, jaguars, teeming rivers with fishes and birds share areas of unsurpassed beauty. A simple walk or drive around the region and the river will offer the sight of toucans, macaws, parakeets, cardinals, ibises and others. This authentic Mother Nature paradise is protected by the National Park laws. Hunting is definitely forbidden, but the "photo safaris" are some of the unforgettable experiences spent in a haven of beauty, colors and sounds.
